Description	Raven Meols Farm farmhouse, No. 13 Kew Road, Formby. (1) The building appears on the map of 1778 and is labelled as James Longton. (2) The building is shown on Yates' map of 1786, Greenwood's of 1818 and Hennes's of 1829. (3-5) The Tithe map of 1845 shows a long building orientated east-west, within the plot No. 37, owned by the Reverend Kesketh Formby's heirs and occupied by Thomas Eccles. It is, however, not described as a building, it is named as Longton Green and is recorded as an arable field. The adjacent plot to the east, No. 36, is recorded as Old Garden. (6-7) The 1st edition 6" OS map of 1848 shows the same building as the Tithe map but does not shade it and labels it as "Ruin". The 1st edition 25" OS map of 1893 shows all but the eastern extant part of the building to have been demolished and Kew Road to have been laid out crossing the site. It is also labelled as Raven Meols Farm. The farmhouse appears to have been located to the south east of the extant building. The building is likely to have been disused from the early to mid 19th century, coming back into use after a period as a ruin in the mid to late 19th century, though when it was renovated as a house is less clear. From the National Heritage List for England: SD 20 NE 2/41 FORMBY, KEW ROAD (east side), Raven Meols Farm (Formerly listed as Kew Farmhouse) II Farmhouse. now Queen's Road. (3) The Tithe map of 1845 records the building and three outbuildings to the north as No. 75, house, gardens and stack yard, owned by Reverend Kesketh Formby's heirs and occupied by Thomas Eccles. The fields around were known as Sherlikers, it is possible the house was too. (4-5) The building is last recorded on the 1st edition 6" OS map of 1848; it does not appear on the 1st edition 25" OS map of 1893, though one of the smaller outbuildings does. The site had been completely cleared by the time of the 2nd edition 25" OS map of 1908, though the western boundary of the property remained.

Description Dolphin bones were found during flood defence works under the railway bridge over the River Alt in Altcar in 1969. Two large vertebrae were found in Downholland Silt. They were found on the Hightown side of the bridge, four or five feet below the present [1969] bed of the river. A subsequent visit to the site in October 1969 found a rib. All three bones had dark staining which was said to be the result of fire. (1)

Description Former site of Formby Old Lighthouse, Ince Blundell. (1) Nicholas Blundell records that on the 17th September 1719 he and his wife rode out to see the landmark tower being built. (2-3) The landmark is shown on a chart of 1738 and labelled as one of the Formby Landmarks. (4) Burdett's chart of 1771 gives the height of the landmark as 120 feet. (5) In 1833 the landmark was converted into a lighthouse. It went out of use on 10th October 1839 as the Crosby Lighthouse superseded it. It was maintained as a landmark. It was returned to use as a lighthouse on 16th October 1851 but was again turned off on 6th October 1856. The tower was dynamited in August 1941 as it was thought that it was of use to enemy aircraft as a landmark. The pile of resulting rubble was still on site in 1944. (6)

Description	A worn millstone was found to the rear of No. 85 Raven Meols Lane, Formby in 1978 when the site was being developed for housing. The stone was found in an area of the garden that had not been cultivated for more than 20 years. The stone was said not to have been brought to the site recently as a landscaping feature. The stone is worn from use and is slightly broken on one side. It is 151cms across, the central hole is 31cm across and the stone is 5.5cm to 10cm thick. The upper surface has a series of shallow grooves. The lower surface is slightly domed roughly dressed and slightly chamfered around the circumference. It is a light red coarse-grained sandstone. The stone was taken to be displayed outside Formby Library. (1) FINDSPOT (POST MEDIEVAL to VICTORIAN - 1540 AD? Description	Deans Cottage, Park Road, Formby, a 16th century cruck-framed building. (1-2) The building is of three bays. The door opens to a central room open to the rafters. A brick fireplace divides the room from the parlour at the eastern end. The fire is screened from draughts by a spere. The parlour has two small windows on the north and south sides. The bedroom above is reached by a steep wooden staircase and has a small window in the east wall. A similar bedroom with its own staircase is above the kitchen at the western end of the cottage. The timber-framed dividing walls were filled with wattle and daub. The outer walls are local dark red-brown bricks. (3) The building was declared unfit for habitation in 1978/9 and sold by the trustees of the Formby estates. Permission was granted for modernisation that would retain the character of the building. The cruck frame was exposed during renovations in June 1980. Door frames were visible at ground and first floor levels, both had iron hinges. Two wind braces were visible on the east sides of the cruck. The 'baffle' inside the front entrance was removed. A sherd, possibly a 17th century strap handle, possibly a Rainford type-ware, was found between the base of a cruck and a sandstone pad. A sherd of 18th century black glazed flatware was found above a compacted floor in a layer of rubble levelling. This same layer also produced a fragment of thick green flat glass, animal bone and cockle shells. The cottage was completely reroofed in August 1980 and the brick walls were taken down but rebuilt using the same bricks. The floor has been stripped out and is now concreted in. Three further sherds were found during the removal of the sandy layer beneath the floor tiles, two of 18th century and one of 18th or 19th century date. A bread oven was found on the south side of the chimney, with a blocked door on the north side. A blocked window was found on the north wall near the chimney. Timber wall plates were found on the north wall. The west gable end, in the south corner, had a sandstone block, possibly a former cruck base support. There was another sandstone block adjacent to the cruck frame on the south side, but the cruck no longer rested on it, it having slipped badly from its original position. (4)

From the National Heritage List for England:

FORMBY WINDSOR ROAD SD 20 NE (west side) 2/55 Dean's Cottage (formerly listed under Ravenmeols 14.06.63 Lane) II House. Probably C16. Cruck-framed. Brick with half-hipped thatched roof. One storey with attic, 3 bays-with later bay added to east end. Windows have small-paned glazing, some with horizontally sliding sashes. One stack to rear of ridge, one to original eastern gable end. Porch with hipped thatched roof. Interior has central full-height room with exposed cruck truss and through parlins. Large fireplace of stone, a C20 feature. House now faces Park Avenue.

Description	A hoard of 19 shillings contained in a pig's bladder concealed in the thatch of a house in Formby, found in 1870. (1-2) The hoard was found when the thatch of one of the oldest cottages in Formby was being replaced. The coins dated from Elizabeth I to Charles II. All had been clipped and were worn from circulation. (3) The coin of Charles II is thought to be either a misidentification or found at the same time but not from the hoard. The latest coins, having excluded the possible crown of 1660, were three coins of 1644-5. It is likely that the coins were therefore hidden in late 1645 or 1646. The coins are now lost. Description	No. 1 Lighthouse Lane, Altcar. In 1982 it consisted of two buildings, Nos. 102 and 104 Liverpool Road. It had three bays with a door to the right within a lean-to porch and a lean-to extension on the east end. It was of brick on a sandstone plinth with some sandstone quoins on the west end. (1-2) A building appears on the site on the 1769 map of the Manor of Altcar, as No. 27. (3) A building is shown on the 1st edition 6" OS map of 1848, as a somewhat irregular structure. The 1st edition 25" OS map of 1893, however, shows three buildings of regular form. These are labelled Robinson's Cottages. The 3rd edition 25" OS map of 1927 appears to show four properties. The OS map of 1984 shows two larger regular buildings. No. 104, the western half of the structure, was demolished in the late 20th century. No. 102, the eastern half, was then substantially modified and extended. It is unclear if any of the earlier structure(s) remains within the central portion of No. 1 Lighthouse Lane and whether any of this might date back to the 18th century or is all of mid to late 19th century date. The building has been further extended, onto the former site of No. 104, in the early 21st century. HOUSE (VICTORIAN to 21ST CENTURY - 1893 AD? to 2050 AD) (1) Archive: Merseyside Sites and Monuments Record. 1977-2011. Description	A windmill is shown on Yates' map of 1786, west of the centre of Formby. A road is shown to the southeast and two buildings are shown to the southwest. There is also an arc of buildings to the northwest of the mill, probably intended to represent buildings along what is now Rosemary Lane. This depiction places it somewhere in the vicinity of Dukes Way. (1) The mill is not shown on Greenwood's map of 1818. (2) A millstone was found north of Raven Meols Lane, c.400m to the southeast in 1978 (now on display outside Formby Library). (3) This could indicate the area in which the mill was located, assuming Yates' plotting was inaccurate and that the stone had not been moved far from its place of use. The Tithe map records no fields or lanes with any associated with mills in this area or that around where the millstone was found. (3-4) WINDMILL? Description	A building is shown on Greenwood's map of 1818 and Hennet's map of 1829 to the south-east of Raven Meols Farm. The title map of 1845 appears to depict a building within plot 91, which is described as 'part affiliate Hey Croft Meadow. On the 1st Edition Ordnance Survey map published in 1848 a small building is depicted, with shaded enclosed ground to the north and south. A single small building is shown on the 2nd Edition map published in 1894, while Clayholes Cottage is shown on the OS map of 1906, with an approaching track from the south-east. Two buildings are shown at Clayholes Cottage on the map surveyed between 1925 and 1926 and published in 1928. Buildings are still shown in this area on modern Ordnance Survey mapping.
